“ Thank you Arlita, you were my connection to the family I never knew. Even today; through you and Daneille, the connection is working.

I finally found you again after losing my contact information due to a house fire. Been looking for 12 years now for you and Danielle and just last night through the Mn. craigslist.com I had some nice people tell me where you were. Wasn't planning on finding either of you in this manner and I am quite devastated by this outcome. I hope you and Danielle enjoy forever together I only wish we could have met. I wrote this poem for my mother but it is for all mothers all the same.

#128 Ode to Mother

O'er the mountain shines the sun
Onto your heart it rest upon
Faraway beauty forever my eyes to see
Captivating love as close could be
I sit to tell you my hearts desire
And watch your eyes cry heavenly fire
I felt the pain of our last goodbye
On the day of your holy entangle
I sit on the clouds to cry, I cry
And now you fly with the angels.
To me, our time was shortened down
I watched the mistletoe fall to the ground
It is here uncomfortable my heart turns cold
I lost the warmth when I lost your hold
Today I openly cry, I cry
My want to be with you sparkles my eye
Tis to the stone I speak for want of you near
Be comforted by the fall of my eternal tears
Goodbye I say, in tears goodbye
Till the day of my holy entangle
I'll sit on the clouds to cry, I'll cry

Till you fly me away with the angels.

“ All of us were very sorry to hear of Arlita's passing. Although I haven't seen her since she left Reno, I have often thought with pleasure of our childhood days in Des Moines and again, of the good times Barbara and I spent with her and Doug in L.A., and later with her and Nick in Inglewood. Our memories of those days will always comfort us. Arlita left behind many friends who are grieving with you. Please accept our deepest sympathy and good wishes.

Love, Keith & Barbara McMurray
