“ Today friends and family will celebrate the incredible life of Austin Boucher. He brought a relentless fight to the cause of healthcare for all. His advocacy was rooted in his own experiences but his aim was for all of us. He was a force and his impact lives on. When I bring my voice and purpose to the work of healthcare for all of us, I will carry Austin’s fight with me. Rest in power, Austin. 💙

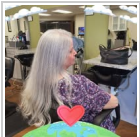

And, damn the snow.

“ Austin will be missed. After seeing him on Channel 11 during the elections one year, I contacted him on Facebook. I, too, am living with a life threatening disability. Told him to contact me if he wanted to be in touch with someone in the same boat. We spoke weekly since then. He was in the same political activities as my son. Hard to realize that he is physically no longer with us. My condolences to his family and friends.

“Austin was an inspiration right from the start. Phil and I remember when you guys found out that he would have disabilities, if he survived his birth. Clearly he was a fighter and one of the coolest kids we have ever met. As his parents his "milestones" had to be Miracles to you and I know you guys treasured things that most of us parents wouldn't think twice about. You became not only his parents but his advocates, educators, specialists, therapists, and his biggest cheerleaders.

This world can be cruel and certainly not "fair" but it sounded like Austin handled anything and everything thrown at him with style and grace. This tells me so much about you the parents and all those who played a role in his life. I can imagine there was questioning if you would be strong enough raising a son with disabilities. Austin would require extra love, guidance, encouragement etc.

It is very clear that Austin touched many lives and you should all be proud of the young man he became.

Everyone has a purpose in life and I am reminded of the Bible scripture Esther 4:14 which I have thought of many times when I question life and loss.

It says "Perhaps this is the moment for which you have been born" I believe God used Austin to minister to others in his own way to show that when even placed in a body that was different than others, he could overcome so many obstacles and succeed in the many areas placed on his path.

We have no idea how many people he touched just by being Austin, even in all of his suffering.

This was his purpose and I am so thankful that the Lord brought him into this world. It was a pure honor to know him.

We wish we could express the sorrow we feel just knowing you are bearing a loss so profound. We pray that you will find comfort in knowing we care. Love, Phil, Vikki and Girls

“ I remember going to camp as a kid and not knowing anyone. Austin was the first person to come over to me and say hi. Sort of break the awkward silence you know. We hung out a lot while at camp and stayed in touch for some time, but as time passed we drifted apart. I really wish we would have reconnected. He was always a happy go lucky person. Rest easy man.

“ It was an honor to know Austin as he was a true humanitarian. His love for people showed in his dedication to bringing a better life to others by improving healthcare, disability benefits and more. He was always strategizing what his next moves were going to be even till the end. When he laughed it would infect everyone in the room. He left a huge impression with all kinds of people from low income to politicians in higher office. Rest in Peace! Rest in Power!
